CENTENARY OF GREAT EVENT

Natives of India Honored Memory of Missionary Who Taught Their Ancestors.

Few events grip the heart and interest of man sufficiently to command, after 100 years, an international, or even national, recognition. In purely secular circles the fact that Adoniram Judson landed on Indian shores 100 years ago may excite little interest, but the Christian world it was an event second to but few in the history of the Christian church.

At the opening service more than 3,000 native Christians filled to overflowing the two largest audience rooms in Rangoon, while hundreds were turned away for want of room.

The second session was given to reminiscences of Judson by those who had seen him. It was notable that of the five living missionaries who had seen Judson all were women. These were followed by a simultaneous prayer service, it having been arranged that at the same hour in America and all Baptist mission fields they should unite with the great centennial gathering in simultaneous prayer.

The music of the entire celebration was in charge of two choirs, a Burman and a Karen, which rendered the most difficult English anthems, quartets and solos, to the great delight and admiration of all present.

After three days at Rangoon the scene of the celebration was transferred to Moulmein for two days, and then to Mandalay and other places of interest, closing at Bassein on December 30.—Christian Herald.

TOO MUCH FOR HER PATIENCE

Daughter Was Used to Strangers Bothering Her Mother, But Here She Drew the Line.

Veteran of three suffragette parades and as many D.A.R. campaigns as she was, she completely lost her poise in an upper Broadway street car, recites the New York Times. A well-groomed woman of at least forty summers and a two-bit skirt, left her seat on the opposite side of the car and took that directly in front of the young veteran and her mother.

"Pardon me," began the newcomer, addressing the elder of the two, "I'm in trouble about my canary bird. He doesn't sing, mopes on his perch, and has completely lost his appetite. You look so like a woman who solves her own household problems that I have taken the liberty to ask you about one of mine. What shall I do for my canary?"

"Take him to a bird doctor," snapped the daughter.

Mother and questioner alike gasped in astonishment.

"I don't seriously object when strange women ask my mother's advice as to what they should buy while she is trying to do her own shopping," continued the younger woman, "where to find a good dentist, how to make a harem skirt out of an old seal skin jacket, or the best way to make bread. She is so maternal and good-natured. But I draw the line at trying to make a bird doctor out of her."

If a Naturalist Painted.

If I were to paint the short days of winter I should paint two towering icebergs approaching each other like promontories, for morning and evening, with cavernous recesses, and a solitary traveler wrapping his cloak about him and bent forward against the driving storm, just entering the narrow pass. I would paint the light of a taper at midday, seen through a cottage window, half buried in snow and frost. . . . In the foreground should appear the harvest, and far in the background, through the pass, should be seen the sowers in the fields and other evidences of spring. On the right and left of the approaching icebergs the heavens should be shaded off from the light of midday to midnight with its stars, the sun being low in the sky.—Henry David Thoreau.

Sheffield Cutlery Lags.

Sheffield is famed throughout the world for its cutlery, but this is no longer the city's chief or even secondary industry. In the finest class of cutlery Sheffield probably still excels, but good scissors from Germany are now sold in the English town for less money than the grinding of the competing article alone costs in Sheffield. The leading cutlery firm, doing a world export trade, operates without the use of a telephone, and another, of equal fame, occupies quarters of the most primitive character. It is in the production of armaments and ship material that Sheffield now stands to the fore.

New Zealand Wireless.

Two high power wireless stations at Awanui, in the extreme north of New Zealand, and at Awarua, in the extreme south, have just been opened for business. Tests made have indicated that messages may be sent and received at Awanui and Awarua over a distance of several thousand miles. There are now six wireless stations under the control of the dominion, comprising those at Chatham Islands, Awarua, Awanui, Wellington, Auckland postoffice, and Auckland exhibition.

Commercial Candor.

"I assure you, madam, these kitchen knives represent the greatest value ever offered at the price."
"They certainly look nice and seem very cheap. The only question is—will they cut?"
"Ah, madam, if you ask me that I'm bound to say that they will not, but that is their one fault."

JOHNSON TO BE WINNER OVER MORAN

JOE JEANNETTE SAYS THE CHAMPION NEVER WAS IN BETTER SHAPE

Joe Jeannette is positive that Jack Johnson, even if he enters the ring on crutches, will slaughter Frank Moran and stop him inside a few rounds when they meet for the world's championship in Paris on June 27. Joe is the kind of a fellow who speaks his mind. He has no use for the Pittsburgh heavyweight, notwithstanding Moran is his tablemate, writes "Left Jab" in the New York Evening Mail.

The "old master" said recently that nothing would please him better than to see Moran annihilated. It is a rare occurrence when you can't get Joe's goat, but the mere mention of Moran's name in our little family pow-wow riled the big fellow so that he wished he was scheduled to take a crack at him instead of Johnson.

I found Jeannette at his West Hoboken home. He got home recently after an absence of seven months in Paris and London getting together a healthy bankroll. No one will begrudge Joe the kale. He was always one of the gamest, squarest and hardest working fighters in the ring. Outside the ring he is a clean, moral, sober man, with a pretty home, two fine children, Joey, Jr., seven, and baby Agnes, five, and an excellent wife who is proud of her husband and children. Also, Joe has an auto.

"This, my fourth trip across the big waters, was the most enjoyable," began Jeannette. "As you already know I engaged in six battles and won all but that close decision Sam Langford got. I received decisions over Carpenter, Alf Langford and Kid Jackson in Paris, and trimmed easily Con Bell of Australia, and Andrew Johnson at London."

"Carpenter is a tough kid, and you can quote me as saying that he can beat fellows like Guyboat Smith and a lot of the white hopes around New York. Some people in Paris say Carpenter must serve in the army, as hers claim that it will be fixed to m to duck army service and receive the prize ring. I don't know how the latter statement is."

Of course you know that Johnson is a French subject now, and the ruling in that country is that every man under 35 years of age must enroll. Well, Jack just celebrated his thirty-sixth birthday, so they can't make him do military duty. They're pretty strict about it. When he enters the ring with Moran he will wear the French colors on his belt. Is he coming back to America? Search me."

"They say on the other side that Moran stands an awfully good chance of beating Johnson. What's your opinion?" I asked, and it was like touching a match to the fuse. Joe blew right up, and cut loose thus: "That ungrateful cuss? He'll lick Johnson no more than my little Joe. I'm though with him. If he can't appreciate a good thing he ought to be low and keep his mouth shut. But no, he wants to tell the world what a great fighter he is, whereas if it had not been for the untiring work of little Danny McKittrick, as fine a fellow as ever lived, you would never have heard of him."

"I saw Johnson at Wonderland on May 5, the day I left for home, and he looks great. He told me he weighs about 240 pounds, 25 more than he scaled when he knocked out Jeffries. But, believe me, he'll be in the best of shape when he battles Moran and I'll miss my guess if he doesn't knock him out in five minutes. Moran doesn't fit with him."

Jeannette learned of differences between McKittrick and Moran when he was in London. He lost no time in telling McKittrick what means to pursue to tame the red-haired westerner.

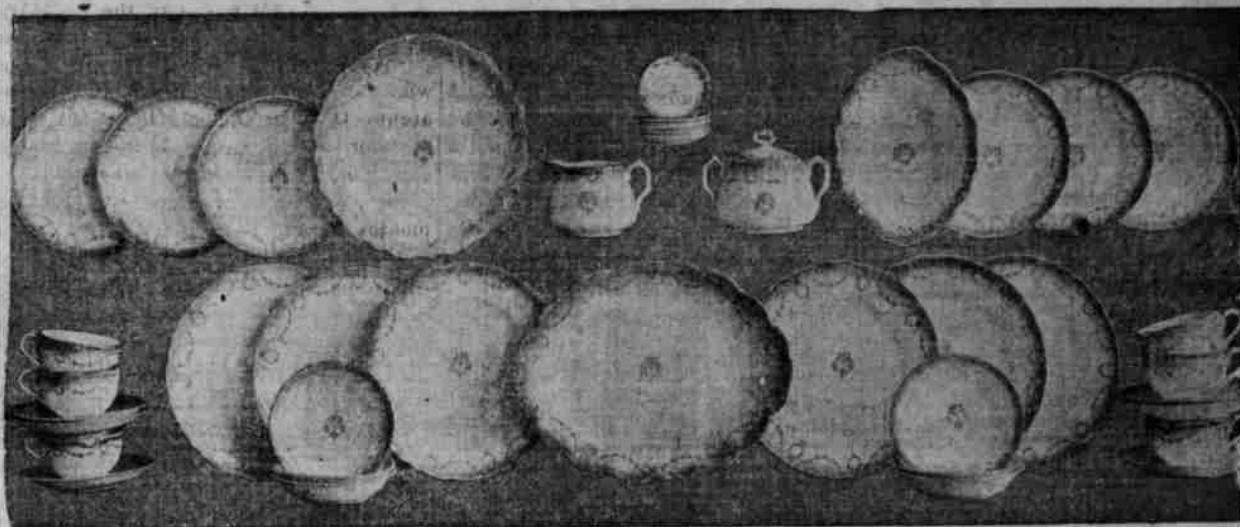

"I don't blame McKittrick for asking Moran to sign a contract with him," Jeannette continued. "Ever since the match was talked of Moran has gone clean nutty. What did he ever lick to deserve a swelled head? He caught the tottering Al Palmer when he was ready to fall and managed to stop him. Where in his record are there any victories worth while? None. He is a foolish boy. McKittrick knew something was up when Moran quit him in Paris and came here, and he made up his mind that he was not going to lose the $1,000 that he paid out in expenses for Moran's living on the other side, when he was loafing and doing nothing. You've got to spank a boy like Moran to keep him in line. I've been with McKittrick for six years and we never had words. When he took me to the other side the first time he had me sign a contract for six months because he didn't know me. Three days out on the ship he came to me and said: 'Joe, see this piece of paper, a so-called contract? Well, here she goes,' and Dan tore it up and threw it overboard."

"Do you know that Moran tried three or four times to double cross me in exhibition bouts? After he whipped Palmer Dan put us on the stage, and remember well how he attempted to beat me up on the stage. But I didn't let him get away with it. During our week's stay in Boston I had to lay off one Friday night because I had to box Sam Langford in the Garden the next night. I went through a tough battle and returned to stage work the next night."

"Well, you should have seen Moran pile into me, when I told him my arms were in bad shape. I got onto him and made up my mind to give him a good thrashing, even if I had to lose my hands for good. And, believe me, he got a licking he didn't forget for a little time. That's the only way to handle fellows like that. I could go on and recount thousands and thousands of other little things about this ingrate, but what's the use?"

Before Jeannette quit Paris Johnson asked to have eight pairs of American shoes sent to him. Joe is going to send them, even if he has to charter a special ship.

"To show how I stand with the French people, the promoters of the fight in which I beat Sam McVey gave me a handsome medal and a countess presented me with a fine wrist watch, but was ashamed to wear it and my wife owns it now."

WILL FIGHT AGAIN

Milwaukee, June 4.—It was definitely announced here today that Willie Ritchie, champion, and Charley White, would meet here again in a 10-round bout Labor Day. When White and Ritchie met here a week ago the champion was badly battered, being beaten in eight of the ten rounds. Ritchie asserted after the bout that he had underestimated his opponent and had not trained for the engagement.

For the Labor Day engagement it is said that Ritchie will receive all that is coming to a champion in a financial way and notwithstanding the fact that White was the victor a week ago he must be content with the "leavings." Ritchie, it is said, will receive a guarantee of $12,000 with the privilege of 40 per cent of the gross receipts. No forfeits have been posted, but the promoters are certain of the match, for the champion is eager to reverse the newspaper decision of a week and White is equally confident that he can do just as well, if not better, the next time.
